Row at a F neral. A BLACK BURYING PARTY FIGHT AMONG THEMSELVES. A member of a colored secret society was gathered to his fathers a few days ago, in this city, and as is customary, the society himself, for his pride, made a poor fisherconcluded to plant him in style, and give man; that he lived as one for him a send-off that would make death appear a pleasure to those who attended the funeral. Extensive arrangements were made, and could the gentleman for whom time had he been asleep that the narrowthe band played the "Dead March" so touchingly have raised from his wooden overcoat and witnessed the pomp and elegance with which he was being taken to the grave-yard, he would have felt proud, and ordered beer for the crowd. Matters pro- shrink from going back into the dull rougressed beautifully until within a short distance of the cemetery, when one Tim. Duhey and George Zurhorst, backmen, became involved in a row. Whips, sticks, and dirt flew around like hail-stones. Dehey got a Is it possible that when one has been asleep bad cut on the head, and the chief engineer of the bass-drum had his head sammed into and has that memory of it which so surthe trombone-players instrument, causing a terrible discord among the musicians, and the procession to halt. When words and blows were thickest the pall-bearers took a hand in the matter, and after the entire procession was broken up the combatants were separated. The colored member who was the recipient of the parade was left to shift for himself for awhite, and after a great deal of trouble peace and order were restored.

Then the following explanation was given: Zurhorst stated that Duhey was employed by the friends of the deceased person, and endeavored to injure him in business by criticising upon the speed at which the procession was moving, calling out so that all could hear, "You could not bury a dog for me." Both parties were before Judge Snell yesterday morning, and all of the society folks were present, with the exception of the gentleman at whose funeral the row occurred. His evidence would not have amounted to much anyhow, so he was left to slumber. A long line of testimony was taken, at the close of which the court remarked that it was altogether a very disgraceful affair, and that the undertaker was not justified in doing what he had done; but as both were about equally punished be dismissed the case .- Washington Chronicle.

DECEPTIVE REPORTS FROM ROME. - Grace Greenwood writes from Rome that all those terrible reports of an eruption of Vesuvius are canards-decoy-ducks to bring in visitors. Old Vesuvius smoked prodigiously, like the Grand Turk or President Grant, and now and then seemed about to spit fire, a streak of dull red appearing in the columns of white and gray; but all his threatening came to naught, though everybody, especially hotel-keepers, swore that an eruption was imminent. But an eruption is little more thought of in Naples than the day of judgment. These easy-going Neapolitans do not anticipate trouble. Only a few years ago many lives and houses were destroyed by the lava floods that poured over a large tract of cultivated mountain-side and devastated the town of Torre del Greco, but the waste places are already redeemed and rebuilt. No sooner does the cruel, treacherous old monster cease to growl and spit out flame than these amiable peasants nestle down against him—warm themselves and plant vines in the ashes of his destructions, and coax him to ripen the grapes by the smoldering fires of his seething, plotting, wicked, old heart. So sceptical were the ladies of and devastated the town of Torre del Greco, old heart. So sceptical were the ladies of the party about the threatened eruption they climbed to the crater itself and gazed into the mysterious, awful pit. After the threatenings and the prophecies of the winter, and the avant courier of an earthquake, any hour or moment might usher in the awful event, and the hot heart of the mountain might leap out at their teet, in a fountain of fire and stones, 2,000 feet high. But it was not the "fullness of time," the customary are used to see the control of the customary are not the "fullness of time," the customary are was cooked in a let of stoom a few from the southwest corner of Clay and Twelfth streets, in the city of Richmond, and running back southwardly on Twelfth street between a line parallel any hour or moment might usher in the awegg was cooked in a jet of steam, a few fragments of lava were gathered, and the gay party that had toiled terribly in climbing up, over a score of dead eruptions, randown the horribly steep declivity like lava streams to their hotel.

AN INGENIOUS CONTRIVANCE .- [From the Philadelphia Inquirer.]—An apparatus has been attached to the rear of the pay-car used on the Middle Division of the Pennsylvania railroad which is expected to be of important service to the officers of the road when on tours of inspection. A roll of cality. white paper seven hundred feet in length encircles a cylinder, from which it is paid out at the rate of three feet to the mile run by the car, its forward movement being regulated by the revolutions of the nearest axle under the car. A lead pencil placed about the centre of the paper indicates by its mark the condition of the track. The more uneven the track the longer will be the mark which the pencil will make. Annother way of showing the inspecting parties that the track is uneven is by a horizontal piece of iron or steel, which oscillates like the pendulum of a clock as the lates like the pendulum of a clock as the train moves. When a very defective point is reached the pendulum comes in contact with a metal on each side, circular in shape, and creates a sound like that of a bell. Some RATHER NOVEL PATENTS .- The whole examining force of the Patent Office at Washington number about one hundred, of which two are ladies. Of course, among such a large number there are to be found men of every kind. Some are so illiberal that they will never grant a patent where they can possibly refuse it; others go to the opposite extreme. Each one having his own idea of what constitutes an invention, of what is useful, many ridiculous patents have been granted. One man obtained a patent for a combined plow and cannon. The beam of the plow was made of iron, and bored out so as to form a cannon. Whenever the farmer, while at work in the field, saw savages or tramps approaching he was to unhitch his team, so as to get them from before the muzzle, apply his match, and say his prayers, for the farmer was a good deal more likely to be killed by the recoil than the sayages by the shot. In case the cannon they can possibly refuse it; others go to the savages by the shot. In case the cannon went off while in use as a plow, it was unfortunate for both the team and the farmer. It is said that Walt Whitman looks so much like Longfellow and Longfellow looks so much like Whitman that when the two poets met for the first time the other day they didn't know each other apart, and only succeeded in discovering which was which by quoting their characteristic poems.-

MYSTERY OF DREAMS.—It is related that a man fell asleep as the clock tolled the first stroke of twelve. He p wakened ere the echo of the twelfth stroke had died away, having in the interval dreamed that he committed a crime, was detected after five years, tried, and condemacd; the shock of finding the halter about his neck aroused him to consciousness, when he discovered that all these events had happened in an infinitesimal fragment of time. Mohammed, wishing to illustrate the wonders of sleep, told how a certain man, being a sheik, found sixty and years, bringing up a family working hard; and how, upon waking up from this long dream, so short a necked gourd bottle filled with water, which he knew he overturned as he fell asleep, had not time in which to empty itself. How fast the soul travels when the body is asleep! Often when we awake we tine of a sordid existence, regretting the pleasanter life of dreamland. How is it that sometimes when we go to a strange place we fancy that we have seen it before? the soul has floated away, seen the place, prises us? In a word, how far dual is the life of a man, how far not?

HIS SLEEPLESSNESS .- "I'm habbin heap o' trouble wid sleeplessness dese nights, remarked an old darkey at the suburban end of State street the other day. "Ho-ho, I reckons I knows all 'bout dat,' said another African near by. "Yo' knows nuffin-dat's what yo' knows," replied the old man. "Sartin I do knows suthin'," chuckled the other; "I knows well 'nuff dat you ean't sleep o' nights; and 'sides, I knows dat yo' neighbors can't nuther ef dey's got any chickens!? The old darkey looked grieved at these words, and as he turned away he expressed his opinion of them by mumbling: "Ef dere's anything dat I hates, it's to see two cullud gemmen allus quarrelin' wid each other-specially wen dev bole ob the same profession."-Brooklyn Arqus.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Bull: "They were united in due form at Madison, the residence of her parents, and subsequently, unless we are greatly mistaken, they were married again in Norway according to the laws and customs that obtain in that country.
